Oregon Public comment must now be screened before council meetings

By Kelly J. Kaczala
News Editor
kkaczala@presspublications.com

Oregon City Council President Tim Zale on Monday said the public can no longer come before council to discuss an issue unless he approves of it before the meeting.

"From this day forward, if someone wants to speak before council, they will need to get a hold of a council member, or a chairman of a certain committee, then they will contact me to see if what you want to talk about is relevant. If people come to a council meeting other than a public hearing, and don't want to tell me what they will talk about, that's not appropriate," said Zale.

It will cut down on long discussions that could have been addressed by city officials via emails or phone calls, he said.

It would also curtail some from using the public comment period to grandstand on an issue that has already been addressed by the city, or as part of a campaign for public office.

"I would like the general public to understand what council meetings are," said Zale. "Council meetings are business meetings that the public is allowed to attend. We have always welcomed the public to comment. We do provide numerous ways for the public to contact us regarding important issues to them. One of the most recent complaints is that we really don't know what's going on, or we don't know what's happening. But providing timely information prevents overreaction and inaccurate assumptions. The city has recently updated its website, which contains a lot of updated information of what is happening in Oregon. This includes emails and phone numbers of all the administration offices and administrators, and all council members. All weekly council minutes and agendas are posted online and easy to find, and all council meetings are broadcast live and archived on the website."

The city has also launched a Facebook page where council's weekly meeting agendas are posted, as well as other information deemed important to the public.

"I think they are doing a much better job with it," said Zale. "There is also other useful information regarding police, fire, recreation, the water department, and what have you. If people use these means to share their opinions to get their answers, there's no reason to make a big show or filibuster at a council meeting. This is not an open mic night. This is a business meeting. We do not want to limit speaking time for our citizens, but there may be a time to consider that in order to conduct an efficient meeting."

Beth Ackerman, of Bury Road, was opposed to the new rule, calling it "censorship."

"The only problem with trying to censor what the public says at these meetings is that there is no real public forum to address things like intimidation, and conflict of interest," said Ackerman. "In a perfect world, I could go to a council person and say, 'I

Rape sentence upheld by appeals court

By Larry Limp
News Editor
news@presspublications.com

The Ohio Sixth District Court of Appeals has upheld the sentencing of a man who entered a guilty plea to rape charges under an agreement with the Ottawa County prosecutor but later withdrew his plea.

In his appeal, Kyle Deselms, who lived in Curtice at the time of the offenses, argued the Ottawa County Common Pleas Court erred by accepting his guilty pleas which "were not made knowingly, intelligently, and voluntarily."

But the appeals court ruled the common pleas court followed the correct procedures for accepting guilty pleas.

"The record, in this case, demonstrates neither a failure to fully inform appellant nor a 'prejudicial effect' based on a failure to inform," the appeals decision says. "Based on the entire record of the hearing, the statements made, in context, demonstrated that the trial court ensured any issues were clarified with a thorough explanation of the terms of the agreement and complete notice regarding the rights that appellant waived in accepting that agreement. Contrary to appellant's argument on appeal, the record demonstrates initial hesitation followed by clear understanding and willingness to enter a plea."

Deselms was originally charged in a 24-count indictment, including one count of rape by force or threat of force, one count of gross sexual imposition by force or threat of force, five counts of rape of a victim under 10 years of age, ten counts of gross sexual imposition of a victim under 13 years of age, three counts of gross sexual imposition of a victim under 12 years of age with an intent to abuse, and three counts of rape of a victim under 13 years of age.

The charges allege the offenses occurred between 2007 and 2012.

In September 2021, he withdrew have an issue. Can you please help me with it? But when it's your mayor and council president enabling people to come in and bully, threaten citizens who have anything to say, then it becomes a bigger public issue."

Ackerman has been at nearly every council meeting since last summer, when she and other property owners were approached by Mayor Mike Seferian to see if they would be interested in selling their land for an electric battery plant in a proposed 400-acre industrial park in East Oregon. Plans for the battery plant fell through because there was not enough available land to buy for the development. Still, Ackerman and some of her neighbors felt the city was not transparent about the proposed industrial park in an environmentally sensitive area that includes old growth forests, wetlands, and eagles' nests. She has discussed issues during the public comment period that some on council believe have no relevance. Oftentimes, the discussions have turned tense, with Ackerman accusing Seferian and some on council of lying to her.

Zale said he is not censoring the public by screening questions.

"We are not censoring anybody," said Zale. "But some people are not taking any means to answer their questions that can be done without coming here, and using the microphone at a council meeting to maybe run for council or something else. It's to the point where it has to end. It's funny, because it's only one person who does that."

"I want to know what you want to speak about. I run this meeting," continued Zale. "I think I have a right to know what it is you want to discuss. I think you need to look at further avenues to get an answer to your question before you come here and try to use this as your pulpit for whatever reason. You can call a city office and get an answer on anything you've ever come here for and asked about. If you contact a council member by email, they will contact you. And if you don't get a response that way, then this is where you should be."

Campaign ad “misleading”

The campaign for Ohio's 41st House of Representatives District seat heated up over the weekend after an endorsement ad from the Nancy Larson campaign was labeled misleading and prompted a reaction from the Northwest Ohio Building Trades Council, who endorsed Josh Williams in the race.

The endorsement ad in question appeared in the Oct. 24, 2022 edition of The Press Newspapers on page 10 and featured a photo of Larson in front of a Toledo Refining Company logo and an unnamed employee.

"We are calling on the Larson campaign to stop using this ad immediately. The combination of the Toledo Refining logo and employee imply an endorsement of her campaign, and that factually is not the case. The Toledo Refinery Company does not endorse candidates and our union which represents contractor employees did not endorse Ms. Larson.

"In fact, Northwest Ohio Building Trades has endorsed Josh Williams for the House District 41 race. We are calling on the Larson campaign not to use Toledo Refinery logo, contractor employees, and Northwest Ohio Building Trades Council members in ads. The Northwest Ohio Building Trades Council stands firmly behind Josh Williams in this race because he stands with working men and women," said Shaun Enright, Executive Secretary, Northwest Ohio Building Trades.

Pemberville Opera House to welcome storyteller

Join professional storyteller Corine Stavish as she takes a humorous and heartwarming look at the people who make us who we are – family – Nov. 5 at 7:30 p.m. in the Historic Pemberville Opera House, 115 Main St.

Stavish's appearance is part of the ongoing Live! In the House Concert series. Tickets are $12 and are available at Beeker's General Store, 226 E. Front St., at the door or by calling Carol at 419-287-4848.

Born in the Bronx, Stavish spent her childhood years in Tulsa, Oklahoma, divided her adolescence between Chicago and the Bronx. She went to college in Champaign/Urbana, Illinois, reared her children in Evanston, Illinois and moved to Michigan in midlife. She says living in four states has given her an unusual perspective of this country and introduced her to a variety of people who populate her stories. Universally recognizable regional accents and situations fill her tales.

Stavish credits her father, Martin Grayson, for instilling in her a love of justice, a passion for history, a wicked sense of humor, and a drive to share stories. She uses her degrees in Theatre, Literature and Performing Arts to great advantage, whether in the classroom or on stage, to shape personal and public history into inspiring narratives described as powerful and poignant.

She has been featured at the National Storytelling Festival and has presented workshops nationwide, and was a keynote speaker at the 2005 National Storytelling Conference. She sits on the board of governors of the International Storytelling Center and is a College Professor in Humanities at Lawrence Technological University.

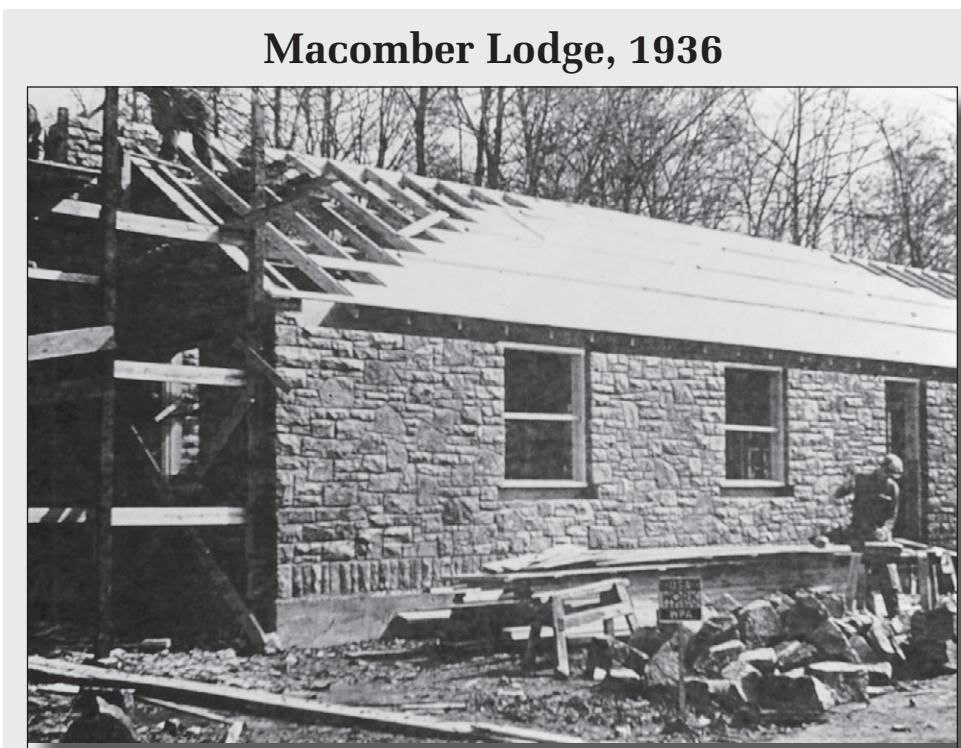

OSS to offer pumpkin composting

For the second year, the Ottawa Sandusky Seneca Solid Waste District will hold a pumpkin composting collection at the fairgrounds in all three counties,

Throughout November, residents may drop off pumpkins and gourds used for seasonal decorations in bins at:

- Ottawa County Fairgrounds, 7870 W SR 163, Oak Harbor.
- Sandusky County Fairgrounds, 744 North St., Fremont.
- Seneca County Fairgrounds, 100 Hopewell Ave., Tiffin.

The District's partnership with Go Zero gives pumpkins and gourds a more sustainable ending, and reduces waste generated in the landfill. The pumpkins will get delivered to Andre Farms in Wauseon, where they will be specially composted. Compost that leaves their farm has 300% the plant nutrition of topsoil and can be used as a substitute for traditionally manufactured petroleum-based fertilizers.

WPA workers are seen here during the construction of Macomber Lodge at Pearson Park on Aug. 22, 1938. Named for East Toledo's beloved Blade reporter George Pearson, the park was dedicated only four years earlier. The popular lodge off Navarre Avenue was named after Irving Macomber (as was the former vocational high school), who was an influential member of the board of education when Scott and Waite high schools were built.

Bins will be open to the public for the entire month of November during daylight hours. Bins are only for pumpkins and gourds, no other yard waste.

County health center undergoing renovations

The Wood County Community Health Center will soon begin a renovation project that will allow for an expansion of services. The renovation will enable the Health Center to increase the number of exam rooms, add a behavioral health wing and expand the pharmacy and waiting room area.

"We're excited about the changes we will be making in our facility, which will improve the experience our patients have in our center, allow us to serve more people and offer expanded service to our patients," said Diane Krill, Health Center CEO.

The remodel is expected to take approximately four months. Construction will be completed in phases, allowing the Health Center to continue to serve patients on-site throughout the renovation.

The Health Center will be closed Oct. 28 and 31. The Health Department will be open for all other services on those days.

Beginning Nov. 1:

-The Health Center entrance and parking for patients will be located on the east side of the building. Signs will be posted to direct patients to the alternate entrance and parking area.

-The Health Center pharmacy will move to an alternate location within the building and will be accessed through the main Health Department entrance.

The project is being funded through a grant specifically for health center renovations, made available from the Health Resources Services Administration.

"We appreciate the support of the Wood County Community Health Center Board of Directors and the Wood County Board of Health in undertaking this renovation," said Krill. "Approving the use of federal funds for this project will provide a long-term benefit to our community."

Jerusalem Twp. offers emergency alert system

By Kelly J. Kaczala

News Editor

kkaczala@presspublications.com

Jerusalem Township is hoping more residents will sign up with an emergency alert system that warns of imminent danger to safety, such as severe weather, as well as public service announcements, in text messages on their cell phones and other compatible mobile devices.

Earlier this year, the township implemented a Wireless Emergency Network System (WENS), according to Trustee Mark Sattler. Residents can sign up for it on the township's website.

"When we send out a text message, those who signed up will get it in real time," he said.

"A few weeks back, we got a report that there was an odor, and there were people who were concerned about it. I talked to the fire chief. He indicated they investigated it. There was a business that was cleaning out an oil storage tank. The odor was not harmful. It was just a noticeable odor. So I was able to put that message out and reassure people in real time that it's nothing to worry about. It was non-hazardous. And the fire chief was aware," said Sattler.

Civic alerts

"We also put out reminders for when you can put out a bulk item along with your garbage pickup – those kinds of civic alerts," said Sattler.

"We try to improve the frequency, timeliness and quantity of communication to folks," said Sattler.

Examples of potentially critical situations include house fires, missing children, and tornado warnings.

At last count, said Sattler, there were just over 300 residents who have signed up.

"Is there room for more? Oh yes, there's plenty of room for more. We have a population of just under 3,000. We have maybe 15-percent of adults signed up," he said.

Sattler sends out most of the messages.

"I think people appreciate getting text messages in real time. If we can get information out in a timely manner, it can be very effective. If there's a fire, the fire chief could put something out saying, 'Please avoid this route for the next couple of hours because there's an active fire fight going on.'"

Lucas County

By signing up, residents will not only receive township alerts, but also Lucas County emergency alerts and public service announcements. In the event of an emergency, an alert would be sent to a phone number or an email address provided by the resident.

It is a free service provided by the township. However, normal message fees may apply. To receive text messages, your cell phone must have text messaging capabilities. By registering, you will not receive unsolicited calls, and neither Jerusalem Township, Lucas County, nor its system vendor sells the contact number database.

To sign up, go to the township website at <https://twp.jerusalem.oh.us/>, then scroll to the bottom of the page. Under "Information," click "Site Map." Then scroll to the bottom of the page and click the link "Wireless Emergency Network System (WENS) is now live!" to fill out a registration form.

Mercy Health offers Halloween safety tips

This Halloween, Mercy Health is offering tips to keep families safe during the time for tricks-and-treats.

"Taking a few extra moments to recognize and address potential hazards can prevent injuries and ensure the best Halloween possible," said Hannah Fairchild, Trauma and Burn Education coordinator, Mercy Health – Toledo.

Whether a trick-or-treater, homeowner, parent or motorist, Halloween can throw some tricks out when we're hoping for treats. To help navigate the trick-or-treat onslaught, Mercy Health offers the following tips:

Trick-or-treating safety

- Make sure to stick to a well-lit path like sidewalks when going from house to house.

- Always accompany children under 11 when trick-or-treating and make sure to identify a plan for older kids on curfew and an agreed route to go on throughout their Halloween night.

- Remind children to never go into a stranger's car or home.

- Avoid dark colored costumes and wear a glow stick or reflective tape to make sure your child is seen in the dark.

- Make sure costumes are not too long to avoid tripping. Opt to wear hats instead of masks, which can obscure your child's vision.

Remember to wash all makeup off at the end of the night and test out any makeup that will be used on your child's face to avoid an allergic reaction.

Halloween Decoration Safety

Light jack-o-lanterns with LED lights

Make sure to stick to a well-lit path like sidewalks when going from house to house. (Metro Graphics photo) or fake candles instead of using an open flame to avoid fires.

Keep corn stalks or other house decorations that might be flammable away from light bulbs or open flames if using any sort of candle since they are highly combustible.

Make sure all decorations are placed in a way that does not cause a potential tripping hazard such as placing extension cords away from the walkway, making sure walkways are clearly lit and making sure fog or other inflatable decorations are secured and away from the door.

Candy and Treat Safety

Remind kids with food allergies to wait to eat any candy until returning home where you can inspect any candy or baked goods for allergens.

Remove any choking hazards collected during the night for younger trick-or-treaters.

Make sure all candy or treats collected during the night are wrapped and sealed so they are not tampered with.

Crashes involving deer higher this time of year

Now that the colder weather is here, vehicle crashes involving deer are on the rise.

Contributing to this increase is hunting seasons and harvesting of soybeans and corn, which make deer run even more.

You may have noticed deer carcasses along the roads lately, and this doesn't include the deer which have been hit and injured that scamper off only to later die from their injuries.

Most crashes involving deer occur in the early morning and late evening hours when deer are more active and when deer are less visible to drivers. Most of these crashes occur in October, November and December.

According to the Insurance Information Institute, there are, on average, 1.5 million crashes per year involving deer, causing an estimated $1 billion in damages. On average, there are 10,000 people injured in vehicle/deer crashes and 150 people die in those accidents.

Other notable statistics about vehicle/deer crashes include:

- Ohio ranks in the top 10 states.
- In those crashes that involve injuries and deaths, drivers swerved to avoid hitting the deer.
- In the last four years, there has been an 8 percent increase in such crashes.

There is no hard evidence to show

Crime Prevention Corner by Ron Craig

the effectiveness of devices that emit a whistle which humans are unable hear but supposedly deer can hear.

The best way to avoid these crashes is to be attentive. As you are driving, periodically scan the sides of the roads. This is especially helpful when you are driving in rural areas. Slow down in areas that are known to be where deer populations are higher.

At night, drive with your headlight's high beams on when possible. Avoid swerving when you are likely to hit a deer, which may cause more damage and lead to more serious injuries than if you hit the deer.

This article is a public service from the Community Policing/Crime Prevention Division of the Lake Township Police Department. Township residents may obtain further information on crime prevention and public safety topics by contacting Ron Craig, crime prevention specialist/community policing officer, at 419-481-6354.

pletion date in the project specifications is March 31, 2023, weather permitting.

The planning commission was notified earlier this year its application for a Brownfield Remediation Grant was approved. Messa said at the time he expected the $500,000 grant would be sufficient to cover the costs of demolishing the building and remediation of soil on the property.

His office has been working with the consulting firm, SME, Cleveland, on the project. The property had already qualified for an assessment by the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency.

In 2013, the Benton-Carroll-Salem school board approved the sale of the building to Carroll Township for $15,500.

The board opted to close the building along with Graytown Elementary School in 2011 as part of a consolidation plan of the district's schools.

The Carroll Elementary building covers about 24,000 square feet and housed pre-kindergarten through fifth grade classes.

In June, Jim Meek, a Carroll Township trustee, said the township didn't have any immediate plans for the site once the building is torn down other than to leave it as a green space.

A magic formula offered for getting more out of life

C = Q1 + Q2 + MA

C: Compensation

Q1: Quality of service rendered

Q2: Quantity of service rendered

MA: Mental attitude in which service is rendered

Virtually everyone would like to have more in their lives. More time, more love, more money, or more happiness. What you receive is dependent on what you give out. To get more you have to do more.

Compensation is received as a result of your service. The degree of compensation is related to how much you do for others. Compensation can be in a variety of forms. The actions that affect compensation are well defined and proven. In order to increase your compensation you must put more into the factors that influence it.

It is really very simple. Increase any or all of the components that determine compensation and the amount of your compensation will increase. Since there is no limit to how much energy you can devote to each component, there is no constraint to your potential compensation.

Q1: Quality of service rendered

First rate service doesn't require that much more effort than second rate service. Yet first rate service stands out like a shining beacon in a sea of mediocrity. By doing the best job possible you will distinguish yourself as an outstanding individual.

Do what needs to be done without be-

Dare to Live

by Bryan Golden

ing asked. Anticipate the requirements of others. Look for ways to fill needs that aren't being met. Develop high standards and don't compromise them. Don't do a rush job. If you don't have time to do something right the first time, where will you find time to do it right the second time?

Be the best at whatever you do. Knowing how to do an excellent job but not applying your knowledge is no different than incompetence. Be honest about your skills. If you don't know how to do something, you can learn. Never be deceptive about your capabilities. Nothing will destroy your reputation faster than insincerity.

Q2: Quantity of service rendered

Go the extra mile. Surprise people by doing more than is expected. Make people feel they always get more than their money's worth when dealing with you. Many people only do the minimum amount necessary. Distinguish yourself by doing more.

Increased service always precedes increased compensation. The more you provide, the more you receive. Those that scrimp and provide the minimum or less are invariably penalized via reduced remuneration. The common retort, "I only do what I'm paid for," serves to prevent a person's growth and advancement.

MA: Mental attitude in which service is rendered

Without the proper mental attitude, the quality and quantity of service are tainted. A poor mental attitude overshadows all of your other efforts. A positive, cheerful, and enthusiastic attitude is the keystone that reinforces the other two components.

When you are sincere about the quality and quantity of service you provide, you attract positive people and circumstances. Conversely, a sour attitude or demeanor will repel those things that would be beneficial to you.

The magic formula has unlimited potential and is always functional. You are in total control of its effects. Put your efforts into each factor and you will be rewarded. Shortchange, ignore, or sidestep any of the components and you will experience negative results.

Your magic formula is working for you as you read this. Regardless of where you are now, you can always enhance any of the elements influencing your compensation. The more you put into them, the more you will reap.

Who to blame?

By Jim Hightower

Today, CEOs of big corporations are playing the tricky "Inflation Blame Game."

Publicly, they moan that the pandemic is slamming their poor corporations with factory shutdowns, supply chain delays, wage hikes, and other increased costs. But inside their boardrooms, executives are high fiving each other and pocketing bonuses.

What's going on? The trick is that these giants are in non-competitive markets operating as monopolies, so they can set prices, mug you and me, and scamper away with record profits.

In 2019 for example, before the pandemic, corporate behemoths hauled in roughly a trillion dollars in profit. In 2021, during the pandemic, they grabbed more than $1.7 trillion. This huge profit jump accounts for 60 percent of the inflation now slapping U.S. families!

Take supermarket goliath Kroger. Its CEO gloated last summer that "a little bit of inflation is always good in our business," adding that "we've been very comfortable with our ability to pass on [price] increases" to consumers.

"Comfortable" indeed. Last year, Kroger used its monopoly pricing power to reap record profits. Then it spent $1.5 billion of those gains not to benefit consumers or workers, but to buy back its own stock — a scam that siphons profits to top executives and big shareholders.

Or take McDonald's. It bragged to its shareholders that despite the supply disruptions of the pandemic and higher costs for meat and labor, its top executives had used the chain's monopoly power in 2021 to hike prices, thus increasing corporate profits by a stunning 59 percent over the previous year.

And the game goes on: "We're going to have the best growth we've ever had this year," Wall Street banking titan Jamie Dimon exulted at the start of 2022.

Hocus Pocus. This is how the rich get richer and inequality "happens."

Biden should heed Bill Clinton's advice

By Joe Guzzardi

Every now and again, both during and after his two-term presidency, Bill Clinton espoused sound immigration thoughts that focused on the nation's best interests. Most recently, Clinton, without naming Joe Biden, took direct aim at the sitting president's open border fiasco.

On a CNN podcast, and in response to a question about economic migrants who are, in the host's description, "gaming" the asylum system, Clinton replied that "there's a limit" at which point open borders will cause "severe disruption." Clinton added that the established immigration protocols, presumably a reference to the traditional agencies that assist incoming immigrants, function on the assumption that border conditions would "be more normal."

"Severe disruption" may be the kindest way to describe the chaos in the Rio Grande Valley and other entry points along the Southwest Border. And severely disrupted is an understatement to define the conditions in sanctuary cities New York, Chicago and Washington, D.C. where the mayors are grappling unsuccessfully to accommodate the migrants that Texas and Florida governors Greg Abbott and Ron DeSantis send north. New York Gov. Kathy Hochul summoned the National Guard to help Adams with his plan, still in flux, to relocate the migrants to a Randall Island tent city. Adams, who declared the incoming migrants' need for assistance "a humanitarian ian crisis," pleaded to no avail with Biden for a minimum $500 million emergency aid infusion. Having no money to deal with incoming migrants is as disruptive, to use Clinton's word, as conditions get.

Clinton has long been aware of over-immigration's effect on American citizens. In his 1995 State of the Union address, given shortly after Republicans picked up eight Senate seats and a net 54 House seats post a GOP mid-term rout to win congressional control for the first time in four decades, Clinton spoke about the anxiety Americans experience during periods of unchecked immigration. Clinton listed many dangers that illegal immigration presents to Americans that included illegal hiring, the subsequent U.S. job losses and providing costly social services. Clinton's word-for-word conclusion: "It is wrong and ultimately self-defeating for a nation of immigrants to permit the kind of abuse of our immigration laws we have seen in recent years, and we must do more to stop it."

During his SOU speech, Clinton mentioned Barbara Jordan, the former U.S. representative who chaired the U.S. Commission on Immigration Reform. The commission's goal was to establish "credible, coherent immigrant and immigration policy." The African-American Democrat from Texas endorsed significant legal immigration reductions with an emphasis on high-skilled admissions, fewer refugees, more deportations and a chain migration overhaul that would limit sponsorship to nuclear family members. Jordan distilled her immigration vision in a sentence: "Those who should get in, get in; those who should be kept out, are kept out; and those who should not be here will be required to leave."

However, Jordan died just months after releasing her report, after which a civil rights, Hispanic advocacy coalition opposed to Jordan's immigration goals strong-armed Clinton into backing away. Had Jordan lived, her presence would have kept Clinton committed to her commonsense immigration reform rules.

Should the GOP manage to recapture Congress, no sure thing, the results won't spawn a 1995-style immigration awareness in Biden similar to Clinton's. As Vice President, Biden continuously hailed "constant" and "unrelenting" immigration stream "in large numbers" as America's source of strength. Given the red carpet welcome Biden has extended to millions of illegal immigrants and got-aways, complete with, in many cases, parole and work authorization, a presidential immigration awakening is highly improbable.

"No" vote urged on Oregon amendment 19

To the editor: The Mayor of Oregon and council members seek to change the city charter in three separate proposals on the November ballot.

I give them credit for not lumping all of the proposed changes into one such as Toledo is doing. It's despicable for Toledo council, the mayor, and advisors to tie road repair funds to another term for the mayor.

Some call it politics, I call it deceit. Nevertheless, Oregon officials want you to vote yes on proposed charter amendments 18, 19 and 20.

Proposal 18 suggests altering term commencement dates from Dec. 1 to Jan. The problem is that election results aren't official soon enough so the extra month would be helpful. It also allows for a lame duck councilperson to vote on next year's budget.

You have to decide if that is a good/bad scenario.

Proposed charter amendment 20 seeks to eliminate having a primary election. They say it will save money. Oregon is one of the only cities in Ohio that still holds a September primary. They could have gone with a May or August primary but they prefer to eliminate it. This would not be an issue if more citizens would run for office, (hint, hint, nudge, nudge.)

I can see both sides of proposed charter amendments 18 and 20.

Proposal 19 is another story. Article III, Section 11, as is, fills a council vacancy with the candidate who had the next highest number of votes. A change would allow council members 60 days to choose someone they prefer as a replacement.

There is something sketchy about "looking" for someone when there are candidates who received votes. If council fails to choose someone, the mayor picks anyone he or she pleases.

In my opinion, proposed charter amendment 19 is the "You gotta be kidding me," "The devil's in the details," the "Oh, hell no!"

If you look at the results of the most recent election (11/21) you can see that the race was very close. Paul Drake and Dennis Walendzak had comfortable leads but the bottom of the pack was a much tighter race. Councilman Terrance Reeves was followed closely by Scott Sullivan and then James Seaman.

If you look precinct by precinct, Sullivan beat Reeves four times. The point is that the people voted and the results should not be ignored. If a resident went to the bother of voting for an individual, whether the mayor or sitting council "likes" the choice or not, that person is who the voters chose.

The more I learn about our city leaders, the more disappointed I become. Some of them believe they are above reproach, ordained to reign supremely. This is not true of all of them! Some are civil, respectful and courteous even in disagreement.

Please don't let them select their cronies over those who actually ran for office. If their buddies wanted to be on council they would have run for the office.

Vote no on proposed charter amendment 19.

Scholars in Aging Program application deadline nears

The Ohio Department of Aging (ODA), in conjunction with the Ohio Association of Gerontology and Education (OAGE), is accepting applications for the 2022-2023 Ohio Scholars in Aging program.

For the past decade, ODA and OAGE have teamed up to offer the Ohio Scholars in Aging program for undergraduate and graduate students who are enrolled in an accredited educational institution in Ohio. Participants benefit from the opportunity to learn about aging-related policymaking, establish professional contacts, and gain career knowledge and skills in the field of aging by completing an internship or a community project, attending ODA and OAGE events, making a presentation for state leaders on aging, and more.

The program stipend has been doubled this year. Participating students who complete all program requirements will each receive $2,000.

"Seniors are the fastest-growing age group in Ohio. Now is the time to increase our engagement with our state's best and brightest minds and allow them to use their skills and innovative ideas to help older Ohioans," said ODA Director Ursel J. McElroy. "Ohio Scholars in Aging provides a unique opportunity for us to help shape tomorrow's policymakers and leaders, while using their insights to help others."

The program is free and open to emerging professionals in a variety of careers. These can include students of nutrition and allied health sciences, city and regional planning, gerontology, social work, or other relevant focus areas.

Ten students will be selected from the pool of applicants to participate in the program.

Applications are due by Friday, Nov. 4.

A survey of the students who participated in the Scholars in Aging program last year showed that 40% have already been hired to work in the aging network, while 80% said their involvement in the program influenced their career decision in some way. Additionally, 90% reported they were "highly satisfied" with their experience.

Each participant must work on their internship or project for a total of at least 45 hours. In addition, participants must attend three ODA meetings, attend an all-day experience at their local Area Agency on Aging (AAA), and prepare a presentation for a Project Poster Session at the annual OAGE Conference.

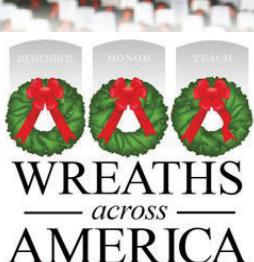

For more information, visit aging.ohio.gov/scholarsinaging.

UToledo, Owens renew Rocket Express Admission Program

The University of Toledo and Owens Community College renewed a partnership that creates a seamless pathway for students to earn a bachelor's degree from UToledo after starting at Owens.

The admission pathway program, called Rocket Express, was first launched in 2017.

Owens President Dr. Dione D. Somerville and UToledo President Dr. Gregory Postel renewed the Rocket Express program during a signing ceremony Oct. 19 in the Student Service Center in College Hall at Owens Community College. Owens Provost Dr. Denise Smith and UToledo Provost Dr. Risa Dickson also participated in the ceremony.

"We are pleased to continue our Rocket Express partnership with the University of Toledo. Our Rocket Express agreement provides a pathway to an additional opportunity in higher education so that our students reach their academic and career goals efficiently. The Rocket Express helps provide support for our students who intend to transfer while saving them time and money. We are grateful to the University of Toledo for partnering with Owens in a way that is meaningful to our students and our region," Somerville said.

"The strong partnership between UToledo and Owens and our shared commitment to student success provide a great opportunity for individuals in our community to achieve their dream of earning a college degree with increased support from both institutions through our updated Rocket Express program," Postel said.

A total of 1,600 Owens students are enrolled in the Rocket Express program for fall 2022 to begin the 2022-23 academic year. Over the first five academic years of the partnership, from 2017-18 through 2021-22, Owens averaged 1,750 students enrolled annually in the Rocket Express partnership. During this time, more than 6,500 students who previously attended Owens then enrolled at UToledo.

Students begin their college journey at Owens and can join the updated Rocket Express program immediately by indicating they intend to transfer to UToledo. Rocket Express students benefit from access to academic advisors at both Owens and UToledo and receive ongoing communication from UToledo as they advance through their academic studies. Program participants also have opportunities to participate in student life activities at both Owens and UToledo, such as clubs, organizations and Express and Rocket athletics games.

As part of the program, students have access to UToledo's degree audit system to keep track of how their Owens classes will apply to their future UToledo degree program, which is a helpful tool especially if they are considering changing their program of study.

Rocket Express students also do not pay the UToledo application fee when they are ready to transfer.

UToledo and Owens announced the updated Rocket Express admission pathway program during National Student Transfer Week that celebrates transfer students and the professionals who support them.

More information on Rocket Express is available on the Owens website at owens.edu/rocketexpress.

Parker's Purpose actively seeking donations

By Yaneek Smith
Press Sports Editor
news@presspublications.com

For the last three years, Parker's Purpose has had to forgo its primary fundraiser, a dinner held every summer featuring a speech from a collegiate or professional athlete or coach that has helped raise hundreds of thousands for local families having trouble paying medical bills.

Some of the speakers have included Buckeye greats like Jim Tressel, Archie Griffin and Eddie George, among others.

In 14 years, the organization has given out over $600,000 to hundreds of Ohio families in dire need of assistance.

The foundation came from the humblest of beginnings. In 2008, Parker Inks, who was at the time a 9-year-old in third grade in the Bishop Hoffman Catholic School District, fell very ill with respiratory problems.

Inks, who suffers from muscular dystrophy and can only move his head and his hands slightly, was the recipient of a fund-raising campaign started by Todd Drusback, who would later become the president of Parker's Purpose, to bring money in to pay for Inks' medical bills. As fate would have it, there was money left over after the bills were paid, and Inks decided to pay it forward and found the charity.

Inks graduated from Bowling Green State University two years ago.

"Being an educator, in our current day and age, you kind of appreciate Parker even more. For Parker, instead of comparing and focusing on (social media), he chooses to focus on the things he can do and not the things he can't do, and that's to make an impact on other people's lives," said Drusback. "He knows that if you put others first, you will be rewarded."

Under Drusback's leadership and with the help of countless individuals who make the foundation what it is today, things are going well.

"Every year, we're trying to increase our annual giving; we're continuing to have more funds raised. That's where we are, I'm trying to collaborate with others," said Drusback. "We're providing iPads and bikes, something tangible, for families with disabled children. Families that are struggling, they're spending their money on medical bills and putting food on the table. We can help them out, help the child in need."

Drusback recently talked about a meeting he had with Kids Mobility Network, a 501(c)3 non-profit organization that provides children with disabilities with complex rehab technology and durable medical equipment such as wheelchairs, standers, adaptive bikes, activity chairs, and other medical equipment.

"As an educator and coach, I understand what exercise and physical activity can do for your mental health with the release of those endorphins," said Drusback. "These children can participate in more activities. We're helping to assist (the company)."

Drusback has done work with iTalk, which is located in Toledo. iTalk stands for Interactive Technology Assisting Autistic Little Kids and helps kids on the autism spectrum disorder (ASD) communicate. The iTalk Autism Foundation is a 501(c)3 nonprofit organization dedicated to providing resources, education and assistive technology to individuals with autism and their stakeholders for the purpose of developing greater independence at all stages of life.

"There's iPad training for parents, it teaches kids who are on the autism spectrum disorder. It helps kids, some of whom are non-verbal, to communicate. I think we've worked with them for eight years," Drusback said. For our iPad recipients, iTalk will help get them set up, depending on the child's disability, and when they leave, they're equipped to help their kid succeed with the iPad."

The Glass City Wine Festival, which takes place in March, will donate $5,000 to the foundation, and Wine Check will donate, too. There is also the Welty Insurance Group's 7th Annual Charity Golf Outing that benefits Parker's Purpose next July. And the other two corporate sponsors are Express Employment Professionals and McNaughton-McKay Electric Company.

For more information, contact Drusback at 419-680-9568 or 419-334-7275 or email ParkersPurpose@gmail.com.

R.C. Waters first-graders visit Old Union Schoolhouse

First-graders from R.C. Waters Elementary in Oak Harbor recently enjoyed a visit to the Old Union Center Schoolhouse – the only restored one-room schoolhouse left as a schoolhouse in Ottawa County.

Norm Witt, the owner of the schoolhouse, talked about what school was like for students long ago. Students learned many interesting facts, including how their predecessors often walked two miles to get to school back in the day.

The schoolhouse, located on Witt's farm on Muddy Creek Road outside Oak Harbor, was part of the Oak Harbor school system and operated from 1899-1934. Witt restored the brick building, which was also once used as a granary.

Students sat at vintage desks, which came out of the current Oak Harbor Middle School and feature holes for ink bottles. They also saw a fire stove original to the schoolhouse. The original pump where students would have gotten water to drink is still out in the front of the school.

The Witt family has collected many old books from various time periods, which were laid out on the desks for the students to look at.

R.C. Waters Elementary students took a step back in time, visiting the Old Union Center Schoolhouse. Owner Norm Witt discussed what a school day might have been like for students in the past, including two-mile walks to get to school. (Submitted photo)

R.C. Waters Elementary participates in a school-wide initiative called Positive Behavior Interventions and Supports (PBIS).

PBIS offers a process for creating safer and more effective schools by fostering a safe, productive learning environment. R.C. Waters has adopted a unified set of expectations for behavior in every classroom and non-classroom setting in the school – Be Respectful, Be Responsible and Be Ready.

Student behavior is documented using a tool called ClassDojo, a tracking system that reinforces positive behaviors and quickly engages students in becoming accountable for their own choices. On a scheduled rotation, students are able to "shop" from the Dojo reward cart using the points they have earned for meeting the behavior expectations.

Top Class Dojo winners for September include:

Kindergarten: Kolt Hansen, Baya Lattimore, Abigail Brandt, Raymond Brown, David Gackstetter, Madison Van Atta and Ella Behnke.

First grade: Annabelle Pohorecki, Amberly Mason, Benjamin Miller, Adalyn Wren, Madison Martin and Andrew Jensen.

Award winners

Two area counties were among the winners of the American Farm Bureau Federation County Activities of Excellence awards.

The winners will be showcased at the AFB annual convention and trade show Jan. 6-11 in San Juan Puerto Rico.

Lucas County Farm Bureau planned and hosted a farm-to-table dinner for its annual meeting. The dinner promoted local foods while members discussed Farm Bureau policy and met with board members. The event fostered relationships between local food vendors and Farm Bureau members. It also provided a time for local office holders to meet with members and learn about Farm Bureau policies.

Wood County Farm Bureau planned and hosted a Pee-Wee Beef Showmanship contest creating pathways to future involvement for youth in the area. Children participating in the contest ranged from 5 years old to 8 years old. The event fostered mentorship with older junior fair exhibitors, taught showmanship in practice leading up to and the day of the event, and created outreach and awareness of both the beef industry and all that Farm Bureau has to offer people of all ages.

Fourteen counties from Ohio were winners.

AFBF received more than 143 entries across all membership categories, with only 24 activities nationwide being selected to present at the convention.

Mural recently unveiled

The Glass City River Wall mural was unveiled recently.

Located at the ADM grain facility on the east bank of the Maumee River, the mural spreads across 28 silos, measuring about 170,000 square feet and required more than 2,864 gallons of paint.

The mural depicts a swath of sunflowers and three persons portraying a Native American elder, mother, and child.

Artist Gabe Gault designed the mural. Models used for the portraits are from three tribes: the Miami Tribe of Oklahoma, the Shawnee Tribe, and the Dakota Tribe. Gault's design was chosen to showcase Toledo's past, present and future and highlight the historical importance of agriculture to the region.

The mural is the inaugural project of Urban Sight, Inc., a Toledo-based non-profit organization.

"It's beyond exciting to announce the completion of the Glass City River Wall," said Christina Kasper, president of Urban Sight, Inc. and GCRW project manager, and Nicole LeBoutillier, GCRW operations manager. "The path to get here has been a truly transformative journey. It went from the idea of a couple friends, while boating down the Maumee River, to creating an art installation to beautify our city, to a community-wide movement that has brought so many people and organizations together around a common goal."

Grant awarded

The Ohio State University College of Food, Agricultural, and Environmental Sciences is leading a research and development project to help greenhouse growers create the most ideal growing environment using real-time data and climate optimization processes.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture awarded a $3.77 million grant to study controlled environment agriculture, a process that extends the growing season, reduces waste, and yields more crops that are higher in quality by controlling environmental factors such as temperature, light, and nutrients.

Chieri Kubota, a CFAES professor of horticulture and crop science will lead the project with A.J. Both, professor of environmental sciences at Rutgers University.

"This grant will help us pioneer controlled environment agriculture in the United States," said Kubota, who also is the director of the Ohio Controlled Agriculture Center.

The study aims to meet four objectives:

- Develop a data- and model-driven decision-making platform.
- Validate the efficacy of new data- and model-driven decision making.
- Understand the socioeconomic of greenhouse technology adaptation.
- Engage stakeholders through professional learning opportunities for workforce development.

CFAES will conduct research in the new, state-of-the-art Controlled Environment Agriculture Research Complex, a one-of-a-kind greenhouse that will be at the forefront of controlled environment food production research. The greenhouse is part of CFAES' Waterman Agricultural and Natural Resources Laboratory, a unique facility that serves as a university hub for teaching, research, and community engagement.

Smith reaches new heights, breaks lofty records

By Yaneek Smith
Press Sports Editor
sports@presspublications.com

Gibsonburg running back Connor Smith isn't just breaking records, he's setting new ones that likely won't be matched for decades, if ever.

The senior has set six program records, first and foremost, the career rushing record with 6,007 yards – just one yard ahead of legendary Golden Bear Dave Mason, a 22-year-old record.

Smith also holds records for the following categories — most single-season yards (2,511); touchdowns in a season (38); touchdowns in a career (83); points in a season (244); and touchdowns in a game (6). He set the career rushing record in last week's 40-13 loss to Hopewell-Loudon on his final carry.

But what's more important to Smith, who is 5-8, 180 pounds, is the fact that his team is 8-2 and 4-1 in the Sandusky Bay Conference River Division. Gibsonburg, ranked sixth in the final Division VII, Region 26 standings, faced Edgerton on Friday, and if the Bears won, they'll go up against either (3) Waynesfield-Goshen or (14) Pioneer North Central.

"I wouldn't have been able to do it without any of the guys I played with, now or in the past. I'm glad I was able to achieve that. I (once) wrote down how much I would need for the single-season and career records; it seemed like so much," said Smith. "I knew it was going to take a lot of work, I've been putting in a lot of work since before my freshman year. It's something I wanted to achieve with team goals. We still had a great regular season, and we have a chance to win a few games in the playoffs. It was something I look forward to and to be able to break those records with my guys was amazing."

Smith first met Mason a few years ago.

"I met Dave during my sophomore season and talked to him a little bit," Smith said. "The St. Joe's game, after I passed the single-season record, he handed me the game ball and it was nice to be able to share that moment with him."

No good running back can do it without a good offensive line.

Myerholtz talked about blocking for Smith and the rest of the backs.

"As guards, we get to call the defense out and how we're going to block. We try to create the hole for Connor. If we give him a little hole, he can get through there," Myerholtz said. "I do like the Wing-T because you get different angles, and people don't usually know how to stop it. It's a nice, physical attack. You have the advantage because you know what the play is and have the angle to block the defenders.

"In our offense, as linemen, we know we have to execute every play, and we can't afford to have false starts and holding penalties. We stress running play after play in practice. We love to take pride in knowing that we front six have to execute for our offense to go anywhere. We are just as important as everyone else. We have to do our part this week."

Needless to say, the men in the trenches are happy for Smith.

"We love blocking for him and we're excited to see what he's accomplished," Myerholtz said. "I'm glad he's on our team and we don't have to go against him."

Smith, who is also a very good linebacker, has high praise for his linemen.

"Those guys are everything. They're just as deserving of the recognition and the glory as I am. Without them, I wouldn't be where I am now. Our offensive line is probably the biggest offensive line that I've run behind," he said. "Staying on their blocks, knowing what they're doing on each play,

That's the kind of kid he is, he leads by example.

making holes for me — they do that so well. Our tight end does great down blocking, but he enjoys being able to lay some hits, too. Our two wingbacks, they want the ball, too, at times, but they're great at blocking. I appreciate everything they've done for me."

Joining Smith in the backfield are Nolan Hoover (601 yards, 3 TD) and Antonio Salazar (323 yards, 3 TD), as well as quarterback Camden Mooney (14-of-23, 204 yards, 4 TD, 1 INT).

The highlight of the season was a 29-26 victory over Margaretta on Oct. 7.

The Bears rallied from a 10-0 deficit and took their final lead when Cole Owens kicked a 21-yard field goal with six seconds to play. Smith, who was held in check by the Polar Bears for the early stages of the game, found a bit of a groove in the second half and rushed for two touchdowns.

The Golden Bears trailed 10-0 in the second quarter before scoring 20 unanswered points, which included a 3-yard touchdown run by Smith to give Gibsonburg a 13-10 lead. Smith scored on a 35-yard run early in the fourth quarter to give the Golden Bears a 26-18 lead before Margaretta tied the score.

Gibsonburg's other loss was 35-13 in the opener against Ottawa Hills. Besides Margaretta, the only other game that was close was a 26-22 win over Mohawk. In that game, Smith carried the ball 36 times for 239 yards and three touchdowns.

Gibsonburg coach Joe Wyant called Smith a "great kid."

"Brian Colatruglio, the Hopewell-Loudon coach, made a comment in the paper afterward that Connor is the best player he ever played against in 20-plus years. He also said he was great on defense, too," said Wyant. "I tell everybody that his best asset is his work ethic. There's nobody that does the extra work like he does. He's very committed."

"In the four years I've missed him for just one day of mandatory weight lifting, and that was right after the state wrestling tournament. That's the kind of kid he is, he leads by example. I don't know if you'll have another one of him. He's the hardest worker that I've been with after coaching for the last 48 years," he said.

Comets reflect on sectional, three-peat NBC title

By Yaneek Smith
Press Sports Editor
sports@presspublications.com

For the third year in a row, Genoa boys soccer won Northern Buckeye Conference and sectional championships.

The Comets did something no team has done in the history of the league, but unfortunately they ran into Ottawa Hills and lost, 6-0. In each of the last three years, the Green Bears eliminated Genoa twice in the district semifinals and once in the district finals.

The Comets finished their season with a 15-2-3 record and an 8-0-2 mark in the conference, tying Lake twice, which also earned a share of the title.

Genoa's two losses were to the Green Bears and Riverdale. There were the two ties with the Flyers and one with Archbold.

The Comets, seeded fourth in the Division III Toledo District, defeated Northwood, 10-0, in the sectional semifinals and held off Toledo Christian, 4-2, in the sectional finals before facing Ottawa Hills.

Tyler Harper was the goalkeeper and Curtis Otto, Bradan Nowak, Hunter Streight and Noah Tipton were the defenders in the 4-3-3 alignment. The midfielders were Wyatt Steinmiller, Matt Lickert and Mike Lickert while Griffin Meyer, Jason Kutchener and Nathan Tipton are the forwards.

The top scorers were Myer, Mike Lickert and Nate Tipton.

The primary reserves were Max Huss, Luke Schmiller, Austin Wolf, Zach Oval, Zach Reardon and Isaac Schmiller.

"Max is a great sub player, he usually gets the job done every time he comes in to play," said Otto, who is considering playing soccer in college. "I think he's going to do a great job this year. Luke has had games where he started and games where he didn't and still did the job well."

Otto, one of four seniors on the team, talked about his experiences from this season, but his career as a whole, too.

"No one's ever won the league three years in a row before. We tied with Lake, but it's still a special moment because it's the third year in a row," said Otto. "It's a great feeling to make history."

"I loved this season. It definitely went

Cardinal Stritch Catholic High School & Academy announced that Denny Shoemaker has joined Cardinal Stritch as the interim athletic director.

Shoemaker is no stranger to coaching and the athletic world. He recently retired from Sylvania Northview High School where he taught math, was an administrator in their athletic department, and has 27 years of experience coaching both the boys and girls basketball programs. Under Shoemaker's leadership, Northview finished with a 148-119 record, three Northern Lakes League titles, and one Great Lakes League title.

"My vision is to reinstate the athletic programs that have been dropped in recent years so that the students and community will once again be proud of Cardinal Stritch athletics," Shoemaker said.

Cross Country Strickland rewarded for efforts in rebuilding Genoa programs

By Yaneek Smith
Press Sports Editor
sports@presspublications.com

When Genoa girls cross country coach Brett Strickland took over the program in 2015, he had five girls on his team.

It goes without saying that the Comets have come a long way in eight years.

In his second year, Strickland's crew advanced to regionals for the first time in school history, and three years later, the team won the Northern Buckeye Conference, its first-ever league title.

He talked about taking over the program, which was fortunate to have an elite runner in Carly Gose, who was a senior.

"It seemed to me that they always had one or two good runners, and they just struggled to build a team around them," Strickland said. "Carly was going into her senior year, and there were a few good girls, but they didn't have those other girls (to provide depth). They always had the talent, just not the depth."

"That was one of my first goals, to never not have a full team. We're going to have five no matter what I have to do. (But) it's not really an issue anymore. It's a process of kids seeing what other kids have done for them."

Once Strickland got some good athletes, things started to snowball.

"At first, I did what every cross-country coach does, which is try to sell the program to our eighth-graders," said Strickland. "Honestly, what started to happen is we got good (athletes) in the program, fast, but they're also kids that you would want to be around. Those kids attract other kids."

"I feel like it was about numbers at first, but numbers aren't impressive. You want your kids to perform well, and we have a culture that's been built. At first, kids didn't love the sport, they didn't appreciate the high mileage. Now my kids want to work hard and the new people on the team get that. When someone joins, they know there are certain expectations. We've had kids that have high expectations. That's the cool thing, it's more than numbers. Now it's expected (that we'll be successful)."

He also had to rebuild the boys program, which had six runners when he took over.

"A hallmark of our boys program is that our seniors are leaders," Strickland said. "We had eight freshman boys this year. A mother of one of the freshmen told me that she hopes he's like those seniors (some day)."

All the boys team has done under Strickland's tenure is win the NBC twice ('18, '20) and qualify for regionals six times ('16, '17, '18, '19, '20, '22).

The '18 team included Bobby Bench, Tyson Lesher, Derek Rightnowar, Dennis Diebert, Connor LaGrange, Ross Schlatter and London Stuller. The '20 team also included Rightnowar, Lesher, Schlatter, Stuller, LaGrange, Nathan Cooper and Logan Evans.

Lesher is running at Bluffton University; Sean Hoeft is on the team at Hillsdale College in Michigan; Rightnowar is at Lake Erie College and Schlatter is on the team at Ohio Northern University.

This year's team had a second-place showing at the NBC Meet. Cooper was third in 18:14.39, followed by Kaden McWatters

At first, kids didn't love the sport, they didn't appreciate the high mileage. Now my kids want to work hard and the new people on the team get that.

(eighth), Alex Shinaver (11th), Toby Karl (12th), James Huston (16th), Ben Sommers (31st) and Ben Loomis (33rd).

"We've had some tremendous boys as well," said Strickland. "They've won two league championships the last few years."

"I know we have a lot of numbers, but it's more important that we're competitive, show leadership and work hard."

The '16 girls team that finished second at a Division III district tournament was led by Brittany Matthews, who was 10th in 21:31.50. Marainna Heninger (13th) and Jocelynn Dunbar (14th) also qualified individually for regionals that year. The other four runners were Jordan Iffland, Adison Leichty, Anda Sutter and Abby Lawson. (Iffland now runs for Tiffin University.)

Three years later, the Comets won the conference meet by two points over Woodmore, 37-39, with five runners finishing in the top 13.

Heninger, who now coaches cross country at the middle school, was fifth, followed by Sophie Richards (sixth), Sara Partin (eighth), Jordyn Bronowski (10th) and Keerstin Pelow (13th). Sami Richards (21st) and Katelyn Bachmayer (22nd). (Sophie Richards now runs for Tiffin University.)

There are other former Comets that are running in college. Jordyn Bronowski is a freshman at Siena Heights University.

This year, the Comets finished third at the NBC Meet with Molly Coleman (10th in 21:44.79) and Josie Lesniewicz (14th in 22:40.02) earning second-team honors in the conference. Katelyn Bachmayer was 18th in 23:20.45, followed by Olivia Martin (22nd), Raegan Schlatter (26th), Lisa Heninger (30th) and Ellie Huss (32nd).

Coleman qualified for regionals by running a 21:22.17 at districts, good enough to finish 13th.

Strickland has received some guidance from other Genoa teachers who have coached at the school, both in the past and present, including Chris Rawski, Bobby Bergman and Tom Kontak.

"They've worked with us on team building and have given me tons of ideas on how to handle things and do things the right way. All three of them have come and talked to our kids and tried to inspire them," Strickland said. "They are such good guys, and they care about doing things the right way. They build kids into leaders."

BG Curling Club hosts Scottish Women Curlers

On Thursday, Nov. 3, the Bowling Green Curling Club will welcome 20 women curlers from Scotland's Royal Caledonian Curling Club (RCCC) as part of the United States Women's Curling Association (USWCA) 2022 Scottish Women's USA Tour.

From Oct. 17 through Nov. 11, the Scots' five teams of four persons will be sightseeing and curling in 14 clubs as they travel as far west as Denver, Colorado and as far east as Belfast, Maine. They will compete against teams from the US host clubs throughout their journey and will be vying for the highly coveted Marguerite Roberts Quaich, a shallow vessel with unique handles that is a symbol of trust and friendship.

Every 10 years clubs throughout the US host the Scots. Typically, five years later the Scots reciprocate by hosting 20 women from the US to tour Scotland. However, the next US Scot Tour will be held in four years (2026) due to the rescheduling of the Scottish Women's Tour because of the pandemic.

This alternating every five-year tour first began in 1955 and consisted of eight women each from the US and Canada, for a total of 16 women or four teams, who visited Scotland for a month and curled around the country. The Scottish women came to the US in 1958 also with four teams. By 1966, the team consisted of 20 Americans creating what is referred to as the Scot/US Tour. This first Tour also became the first Associate Member of the RCCC Ladies' Branch. With such good relations, it was determined that exchange visits would alternate every five years with a three-week tour.

"God's Work, Our Hands"

Inspirational Message of the Week:

Transcendence occurs when we have an experience which gives us a glimpse beyond our mundane physical world. Sometimes this happens when we experience God in the stillness of prayer or solitude. Other times this happens when we confront the power or vastness of nature. The starry sky can overwhelm one with the sense of eternity, just as the power and size of the ocean can make us aware of God because we feel so small by comparison. Transcendent experiences where we feel the presence of God can't be forced, but we can make ourselves ready for them, and put ourselves in situations where they are more likely to happen. Nature and solitude are two of the more common ways to foster transcendent experiences, but many people also get them through being in sacred places, such as churches or temples. Some find the experience through works of art or music, and it can also come via our contact with holy men or women. Truly holy people often radiate God's love so strongly that one feels God's presence through that person. One problem with transcendent experiences is that they don't last forever. Despite glimpsing eternity in the experience, we inevitably fall back into the humdrum monotony of everyday life, and that return can be a letdown. We should seek these experiences, but realize that they are but a glimpse of our ultimate origin and destination. "Oh, the depth of the riches of the wisdom and knowledge of God! How unsearchable his judgments, and his paths beyond tracing out!" —Romans 11: 33 NIV
