Village to hold fireworks fundraising efforts in June

With just over a month until the Oak Harbor Independence Day Celebration on July 3, the Oak Harbor Area Chamber of Commerce is making the final push to reach its fundraising goal to support the fireworks show this year.

As a result of a 30 percent increase in costs due to continued supply chain issues, the chamber reached out to the community for support to ensure that the event could continue. Thanks to business and individual donations, the Fireworks Fund Reverse Raffle, and the first Oak Harbor Lions Club sandwich sale in May, the Chamber has reached approximately 75 percent of its goal.

The community still has an opportunity to support the event in the following ways:

- The Oak Harbor Lions Club will host another sandwich sale featuring its famous sausage and sirloin sandwiches on Friday, June 3, from 4-7 p.m. and on Saturday, June 4, from 7 a.m.-1 p.m. at the Oak Harbor Hardware's Mill Street parking lot.

Proceeds from the sale will be donated to the fireworks fund.

- Similar to years past, the community can purchase paper stars beginning Memorial Day weekend through the end of June at both Community Markets and Friendship Sunoco in Oak Harbor. Stars can be purchased for $1, $5 or $10.

- Monetary donations may be dropped off or mailed to the Oak Harbor Area Chamber of Commerce at 161 W. Water St., Oak Harbor, OH 43449.

"The Independence Day Celebration is a staple in Oak Harbor," said Valerie Winterfield, executive director, Oak Harbor Area Chamber of Commerce. "It's always been an opportunity for our community and families to come together in downtown to celebrate with one another. We can't thank the community enough for stepping up this year to support our village and this signature event that thousands look forward to every year."

Funds raised exceeding the amount needed for 2022 will automatically go into the 2023 fireworks fund.

The annual, half-day event is free

Sheriff

Road patrols to continue in Jerusalem Twp.

By Kelly J. Kaczala
News Editor
kkaczala@presspublications.com

Lucas County Sheriff Michael J. Navarre told Jerusalem Township trustees on Tuesday that deputies will continue to provide road patrols into 2023, although not 24/7 as deputies currently do.

He said there would be a deputy in the township 50 percent of the time without charge.

It was an improvement over his previous decision to bill the township $750,000 annually to continue road patrols due to Lucas County budget cuts.

Navarre had sent a letter to the township in December stating patrols would end in the township on Jan. 1, 2023 if trustees did not pay the bill.

"You're here tonight wondering what's going to happen in 2023," Navarre said to trustees. "You're going to have a road patrol. You're not going to see an improvement in service because your trustees have informed me that a decision has been made. They are not going to contribute any funding for improved service."

Oregon supplants service in Jerusalem Township, said Navarre, who was Oregon police chief for nine years before he was elected sheriff last year.

"Oregon does very well financially be-here," he said.

Navarre said it is difficult to get patrols out to the township because it's on the east side of the county. The other townships are grouped together on the west side.

Springfield Township passed a levy that is expected to collect $3 million annually to fund three sheriff's deputies 24/7, and Monclova contracts with the sheriff to provide one deputy, he said.

The call volume is very low for Jerusalem Township, and accounts for one percent of all calls for service. The Lucas County Sheriff has never provided a high level of service as a result, said Navarre.

By comparison, Springfield Township accounts for over 60 percent of calls, and Monclova accounts for 20 percent of calls.

"You can understand why they have full service contracts, because they account for 80 percent of all the calls," he said.

"I told Springfield in January of 2021 our service was no longer sustainable. I told them this could not continue," said Navarre, as their calls for service continue to grow every year.

"Springfield got the message. Had they not passed a levy, I would not have put out a road patrol. I have no statutory responsibility to do so. I have one statutory responsibility as sheriff, and that's to provide the operation of a jail, which is what I do," said Navarre.

"I'm not here to tell you the world's going to end," he said. "Life is going to go on. Most of you are not going to see any difference in police service as long as Oregon continues to bail us out. They're kind enough to do that. And that's the way police departments work. If Oregon is in trouble, and they need staffing, Northwood comes over and helps. Oregon pretty much covers Jerusalem Township. I tried to talk Oregon into assuming responsibility for the township, but they have the same problem I have, they want money and it's just not going to work out. There was also some talk about Ottawa County doing the same thing, but it's kind of the same situation."

After the meeting, Trustee Mark Sattler said he was pleased to hear that road patrols would not end.

"We're very grateful to Sheriff Navarre," said Sattler. "He understands our financial situation, and he is not insisting we purchase coverage from him. He's going to continue to provide sheriff deputy coverage at 50 percent. We think that's a wonderful outcome. We're glad to still have a sheriff presence. Our township doesn't have the funds to be able to afford a large bill for a contract with the sheriff's department. So we're very pleased he's going to continue to provide law enforcement services to Jerusalem Township."

Beginning July 1, the public can discharge consumer grade fireworks in Ohio except where a political subdivision has chosen to opt out, meaning they will not allow people to discharge consumer grade fireworks.

Oregon City Administrator Mike Beazley asked city council on Monday to review the law and decide whether to opt out or not.

"Ohio law has changed on the personal possession of fireworks, said Beazley. "Each community has to decide between now and the end of June if we want to do legislation that deals with this or not."

City Solicitor Melissa Purpura said House Bill 172 amended the Ohio Revised Code that limited personal possession of firecrackers and bottle rockets. "It limits it only to the individuals who sell it. Previously in Ohio, everyone was prohibited from possessing and discharging. So House Bill 172 now puts it to the communities to enact their own home rule to say whether they want to prohibit it entirely as it was before, or do you want to limit it to certain holidays, days and times. If we want to prohibit it or put some limitation on it, we have to enact legislation by June 30 due to the fact it goes into effect July 1," she said.

"Is there any feeling at all yet how communities neighboring us would probably react to this?" asked Council President Tim Zale.

"I have not reached out to the surrounding communities. I can definitely do that and report back to council. I can tell you that several communities in the State of Ohio have chosen to prohibit it, that being Rocky River, Lakewood, Oberlin. There are several around the state," said Purpura.

"I'm interested in the Lucas County area basically," said Zale. "Also, on a second note, if we were to redo our own legislation on this, would we have the ability to prohibit the sale of fireworks in the city - not just the use of them, but the sale of them."

"No, it would be specifically towards possession," said Purpura.

"So it would stay the same as it is right now," said Zale.

"Correct," said Purpura.

"This is a thing that a lot of cities are just learning," said Beazley. "We're all just trying to react to the change in law. A lot of cities are going to be deciding over the next 35 days or so. We might want to have a public safety meeting and review our options, draft legislation, or just leave it alone. Let's face it, we all know, even though it's not necessarily legal, that around the Fourth of July, our residents shoot off fireworks. The only rational response from police is to tell them to knock it off if it gets too noisy or disruptive. We all have lived it. We don't know the answer. This is really a legislative question. We will get a sense from the surrounding communities what their plans are and get that back to us."

"We've seen laws like this come up in the past," said Zale. "We have this window. If we refuse to act on this window, we can never revisit it. We're stuck with what we have."

"That's correct," said Purpura.

"Unless the Legislature acts again," said Beazley.

Also at the meeting, council:

- Council authorized a special use permit for property at 3026 Pickle Road for the purpose of having up to six chickens (only hens) on the property in an R-2 medium density residential zoning district.

- Approved an ordinance authorizing the City of Oregon Fire and Rescue Department to enter into a cooperative agreement with the Ohio Division of and includes food vendors, local entertainment, the Apple Festival Royalty Duck Race on the Portage River and inflatables for children, culminating with the fireworks display around 10 p.m.

"The 4th of July celebration is a beloved tradition in Oak Harbor. We have almost reached the goal so special thanks to the Lions Club, Community Markets and Friendship Sunoco for their additional efforts. Together, I am confident we will reach our goal and have another fantastic Independence Day celebration," said Quinton Babcock, mayor, Village of Oak Harbor.

Forestry establishing a working relationship to meet the forestry needs of the area. The Ohio Department of Natural Resources is comprised of several divisions, one of which is the Division of Forestry. The Ohio Revised Code requires the Ohio Division of Forestry to enter into agreements with fire departments of political subdivisions to meet the needs of forestry assistance in Ohio. The agreement establishes the working relationship between the Oregon Fire and Rescue Department and ODNR Division of Forestry. It commits ODNR Division of Forestry to offering assistance programs to the Oregon Fire Department such as grants, federal surplus equipment, wildfire training opportunities, as well as various other programs. It also sets forth training and reporting requirements for the Oregon Fire and Rescue Department.

Families, not social services agencies, nursing homes or governmental programs, are the main providers of long-term care for older person in Northwest Ohio. The National Family Caregiver Support Program, implemented as a part of the Older Americans Act of 2000, recognizes the monumental role caregivers play in caring for older family members. The Caregiver Support Program offers a variety of resources for caregivers such as educational opportunities, respite opportunities, and caregiver counseling.

- 11:45 a.m.: "Managing Caregiver Stress," presented by Salli Bollin, executive director, MemoryLane Care Services

Caregivers will often face stressors that they may not recognize nor have the tools to manage. This program will identify common causes of caregiver stress, explore how it impacts an individual's well-being, and discuss methods to proactively manage stress. As part of the session, local support and resources, and practical strategies to minimize stress that can fit into the busy schedule of a caregiver will be shared.

The Care Compass Project is sponsored by Bowling Green State University Optimal Aging Institute, Brookdale of Bowling Green, Golden Care Partners, Ohio Living, Wood County Committee on Aging and Wood County Hospital.

World War II Housing, Front Street, late 1940s

Special housing was needed in East Toledo for all the returning veterans when World War II ended in 1945. These units were built at Waite High School along Front Street in 1946, and they remained there until well into the 1950s. In recent years, along with the renovations to Waite, this area, formerly known as Optimist Park, has become part of the 25-acre Waite campus where the Welker softball diamond and athletic area now stand across from the new Metropark.

Transportation App updated

TRIPS Public Transportation is offering riders the ability to check on their ride status through the Ecolane Mobile App.

Currently, TRIPS rides must be booked by calling 24 hours in advance, and riders will be given a 30-minute pick-up window for their trip. But with the Ecolane Mobile App, riders will be able to see the expected arrival time of their TRIPS ride on the day of the trip and see real-time updates on their scheduled rides.

"While riders will still have a 30-minute window for pick-up when booking a ride with TRIPS, Ecolane will give them the convenience of knowing more precisely when to be ready for pick-up on the day of their scheduled ride," TRIPS Transportation Specialist Lori Beers said.

Riders will also be able to cancel a scheduled ride with TRIPS through the app.

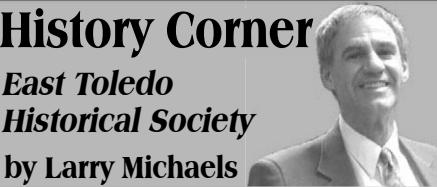

To sign up for the app, riders should contact TRIPS dispatch at 419-332-8091 or trips@glcap.org. TRIPS will ask riders to provide an email address to establish a user identification. Once TRIPS makes a user identification for the rider, TRIPS will then send an email to the rider with information on setting up a password and downloading the app.

While the Ecolane app is also available for download on the iTunes and Google Play app stores, users must still contact TRIPS to establish accounts.

Hydrant flushing

The Northwestern Water and Sewer District has begun its annual hydrant flushing program.

Hydrant flushing consists of opening approximately 4,000 hydrants throughout the district's five-county service area for maintenance. This maintenance project generally takes the district seven to eight months to complete and is expected to wrap up in November.

Flushing not only tests hydrants to ensure they work properly and have ample flow for first responders but also improves water quality by removing fine sediment in the distribution system. The Ohio EPA requires annual flushing.

During hydrant flushing, water is safe to drink. There may be a temporary drop in water pressure during testing periods. Occasionally, water becomes discolored after hydrant flushing. If this happens, run the cold water tap for a few minutes until the water clears. If it does not clear the first time, wait a few minutes and run the water again. Avoid washing clothes until the water clears. Should your laundry become discolored, the district offers stain remover caused by discolored water. For additional information, call 419-354-9090, ext. 170.

District crews flush hydrants weekdays from 7:30 a.m.-4 p.m. Crews will start working in and near US 23 from Fostoria to Rising Sun, Cygnet, Custar, Milton Center, and Weston through early June.

Visit nwwsd.org for more information.

Process to vacate Carroll Twp. ditch starts

By Larry Limpf
News Editor
news@presspublications.com

The Ottawa County engineer has until Aug. 12 to file the required paperwork for vacating the Otto Pfeiffer Ditch in Carroll Township.

The county commissioners, after holding a hearing to consider a petition to vacate the ditch, unanimously approved a resolution in favor of the petitioners.

"The board finds, on balance, that the vacation of the Otto Pfeiffer Ditch will be conducive to the public welfare, as the property owners of the benefited real property have petitioned to and shall jointly bear this sole responsibility to maintain the ditch to their satisfaction and enjoyment without assessment from the county," the resolution says.

The resolution directs the county engineer's office to prepare final assessments for the cost of vacating the ditch, including expenses for engineering, legal notices and final maintenance.

Once the process is complete, the ditch, which stretches along Duff-Washa Road for 1.25 miles to State Rte. 19, will be removed from the county's maintenance program. Under the program, costs of maintaining a ditch are assessed to landowners whose property benefits from the drainage.

County records indicate the Otto Pfeiffer Ditch was added to the county's list of maintenance ditches in 1963, Ron Lajti, county engineer, said. In all, the ditch drains approximately 145 acres.

Leona Dupler, who filed the petition to vacate in December, said she was pleased with commissioners' decision. She said she was frustrated with the work of a contractor who replaced drainage tiles on the section of the ditch that crosses her property.

Eight other property owners signed the petition, including Vicki Snow, who was also critical of how the county handled repairs and the clean-up after a project.

She said she is also wary of how final assessments will be tallied.

"There was no discussion on how final arrangements of the maintenance program

Of course all landowners will be expensed to the very end, including hours for employees being at the hearing who didn't need to be there...

would be fulfilled," Snow said. "Of course all landowners will be expensed to the very end, including hours for employees being at the hearing who didn't need to be there; to inspection and reports that should have been executed before for instructions for a costly clean out. So it is a little confusing on what we are left with and what was supposed to be a part of the cleaning and what the end charges are with no itemized record."

There is a 30-day window to appeal the commissioners' decision to approve the petition to vacate.

A bond posted by Dupler when she filed the petition will be returned to her after the 30-day period expires.

Lajti said final assessment letters that will include a deadline to submit payments will be mailed to property owners.

During a May 5 hearing on the petition, he said the ditch didn't meet criteria set in the Ohio Revised Code to be vacated.

It has 'never ceased to be a public utility,' he said.

Flyover tradition to include vets

A Memorial Day tradition in the Genoa area will continue this year but with a twist.

Fred Kusian, of Billman Road, plans to pilot his plane, a Maule 180, over the Memorial Day observance at the Allen Township/Williston Cemetery on May 30 – a tradition started by his father, Byron, a World War II veteran, more than 30 years ago.

Fred took over piloting duties when his father was no longer able to fly and to make the flyover event this year a little more special he decided to have a veteran to join him on the flight.

Through his girlfriend, Danette Core, a nurse practitioner at the Veterans Affairs clinic in Sandusky, Kusian was put in touch with a Genoa resident, Jimmy Wirick, an Army veteran.

Wirick's wife, Jamie, is also a nurse and works with Core at Bay Park Hospital.

"I asked Danette to find a veteran to fly with me and she did," Kusian said. "So weather-permitting we will be flying over the service around 11:45 a.m. We'll be taking off from our home strip on our farm."

The service at the cemetery starts at 11:30 a.m.

Kusian's brother, Jim, also a pilot, plans to participate in the flyover and has invited a veteran of the Vietnam conflict,

When they asked me I said ‘sure.’ I’m looking forward to it.

Bob Fahle, to join him. Jim pilots a Maule 235.

The brothers expect to be flying about 200 feet above ground when they are over the cemetery.

Wirick said he was excited to be included in the event.

"When they asked me I said 'sure,' " he said. "I'm looking forward to it."

Wirick served with the 1st Infantry Division based at Fort Riley, Kansas. He deployed to Afghanistan in 2011 as part of Operation Enduring Freedom.

The speaker for the service at the cemetery will be State Rep. D.J. Swearingen.

The Genoa Area High School band will also perform. The cemetery is located on Martin-Williston Road.

EPA education grants awarded

Five Ohio organizations are receiving Ohio EPA Environmental Education mini grants for projects focused on habitat restoration, storm water management, and environmental careers. The mini grants are being awarded statewide for a total of $16,066.

The five mini environmental education grants being awarded for Spring 2022 are:

-Eastwood Local Schools – Eastwood Middle and High Schools, are receiving $2,060 for 8th grade science lessons focusing on reproduction, adaptations, and natural selection of trout, and what makes successful or unsuccessful habitats over time. The high school marine science class will monitor and care for the fish as they grow. -Perrysburg Exempted Village School District – Hull Prairie Intermediate is receiving $1,506 to raise trout from eggs to fingerlings and facilitate their release in an Ohio Department of Natural Resources-approved location. The focus is on the importance of trout in the biosphere, water quality, pollution, and restoration efforts. -Friends of Old Woman Creek, in Erie County is receiving $5,000 to install a weather station at the Western Reserve Local School's campus to be monitored by educators and students with assistance from Old Woman Creek National Estuarine Research Reserve staff.

Many things can lead to your lurking procrastination

The specter of procrastination is always lurking in the background attempting to derail your goal attainment. When you put things off, nothing happens. If you're waiting for things to happen, you'll be waiting a long time.

There are numerous reasons for procrastinating. Fear of failure is one of the major causes. Although the reasoning is that, "If I don't start, I won't fail," the real impact is that if you don't start, you'll never succeed.

Fear of failure should never limit you because you only really fail when you give up. Waiting is giving up. If what you are doing isn't providing the desired results, you simply make adjustments as you continue to move forward.

Risk aversion is tied to fear of failure and also leads to procrastination. Nothing is ever achieved without taking a risk. So, when you try to avoid risk by procrastinating, you are in effect guaranteeing that you will fail in achieving your objective.

Anxiety of not knowing how to start keeps you waiting. You can determine

Dare to Live

by Bryan Golden

where to start by creating a plan where each step is small enough to be readily doable. Getting started is easier when you know what first step you should take.

Feeling overwhelmed by the perceived enormity of the task at hand is grounds for procrastination. However, tasks that are put off tend to grow in size. Use the same strategy employed in constructing large brick buildings. Just place one brick at a time. The largest objectives are reached by taking enough small steps.

Fear of criticism fuels procrastination. Since most people don't care about what you think, why waste any time worrying about what they think. It doesn't matter what other people say think, or do. It does matter what you think and do. Every invention and breakthrough was accomplished because the person responsible didn't care about criticism.

A lack of motivation keeps you waiting. Without a burning desire to reach your objective, there is little incentive to start. Yet there are tasks you need to finish that don't excite you. When faced with this situation, instead of putting something off until later, work on it for just 15 minutes. This approach gets you started which breaks through the procrastination log jam.

Fatigue puts you in procrastination mode. You don't want to do anything challenging when tired. Schedule your day so that important tasks are handled during periods of peak energy. This strategy also enables you to get more done in less time.

Distinguish between activity and productivity. Activity includes any tasks which keep you busy without moving you closer to a goal. You are productive when you are working toward one or more specific goals. Therefore, you want to be devoting your time to productive endeavors.

Eliminate unproductive tasks which accomplish nothing. Learn to say no to those projects which don't move you forward. Treat your time as the valuable commodity it is. Spending time on unproductive tasks is just as useless as not doing anything.

Use a to-do list to prioritize what you will be doing each day. Always put the most important task on top. Complete this task before dealing with the next item. This process keeps you moving towards your goals instead of taking meaningless detours.

Start today doing what it takes to move toward your goals. First, clearly define your goals. Next, create a plan of action, broken down into small and manageable steps. And then take action by taking the first step.

Importance of fathers noted by Dungy foundation

By Paul F. Petrick

No good deed goes unpunished. Last month, former NFL head coach Tony Dungy was among the attendees at a bill signing ceremony in Florida for new legislation supporting fatherhood. The bipartisan Responsible Fatherhood Initiative will set aside more than $70 million to help struggling fathers in the state play a greater role in the lives of their children. Much of the funding will go to nonprofits like Dungy's All Pro Dad Foundation that assist fathers seeking employment, readjusting to life post-incarceration, and learning parenting skills.

Regrettably, a vocal group of leftist political commentators, including former sportscaster Keith Olbermann, used Dungy's support for responsible fatherhood as a political football. They took to Twitter to hurl epithets like "racist" and "fascist" at the first black head coach to win a Super Bowl. This was not the first time arrogant media figures directed their hatred at those with the temerity to talk about the critical importance of fathers. Dungy's critics are a faint echo of the firestorm directed at Vice President Dan Quayle, 30 years ago this month.

Two weeks after the 1992 Los Angeles riots devastated that city, Quayle reflected on the troubles facing poor urban communities in a speech before the Commonwealth

Guest Editorial

Club of California. Quayle placed the blame for the violence and wanton destruction squarely on the perpetrators. But in refusing to excuse the actions of the rioters, Quayle also contextualized the riots as part of a broader societal trend. Noting that society is only as strong as its foundational unit, the family, Quayle detailed at length the direct relationship between family breakdown and poverty, crime, and drug use. He welcomed welfare reform but emphasized that no amount of tinkering with antipoverty programs would replace the absent fathers of inner cities. The problem, Quayle said, was a "poverty of values" causing an increasing number of Americans, including the vast majority of black Americans, to be born out of wedlock and raised without both a mother and a father in the home.

Quayle lamented that those controlling the commanding heights of the culture often send the wrong message. He specifically faulted the CBS-TV sitcom Murphy Brown for depicting its lead character as "mocking the importance of fathers, by bearing a child alone and calling it just another lifestyle choice." Quayle concluded his remarks by inviting a "national debate" over these issues to "roar on." The roar went on for months. Quayle was immediately denounced by Diane English, Murphy's creator and producer. Hillary Clinton called Quayle "out of touch." The controversy reached a crescendo when the series returned for a fifth season that fall. Its season premiere was devoted to the Quayle speech with its star character lecturing the audience about the merits of nontraditional family structures.

Unlike today, Murphy aired during an era when many people still watched network shows. It lasted 10 seasons and was ranked number three in the Nielsen ratings at the time of Quayle's criticism. The series' rejoinder to Quayle was watched by 70 million viewers. Despite the show's popularity during its original run, Murphy struggled to find success in rerun syndication, its topicality having quickly dated the show. A 2018 attempt to revive the sitcom ended after 13 episodes.

In contrast, Quayle's comments on fatherhood aged gracefully because his thesis is timeless. Television writers may insist that all family structures are equally strong, but 60 years of social science suggests otherwise. Years later, Emmy Award-winning actress Candice Bergen, who played the character "Murphy Brown" on the eponymous TV show, confessed she agreed with Quayle, calling his remarks "a perfectly intelligent speech about fathers not being dispensable." Bergen knows a thing or two about the importance of fathers. She followed her father Edgar Bergen, a famed ventriloquist on radio and television, into show business.

Dungy also knows about the importance of fathers. He became involved with promoting responsible fatherhood after visiting a prison and discovering that inmate after inmate went through childhood without a father.

In response to his critics, Dungy cited a politician who once said "Children who grow up without a father are five times more likely to live in poverty and commit crime; nine times more likely to drop out of schools and 20 times more likely to end up in prison. They are more likely to have behavioral problems, or run away from home or become teenage parents themselves. And the foundations of our community are weaker because of it." That politician was Barack Obama. Unlike Murphy Brown, reruns of Quayle's message still hold up.

A life lesson learned in a cramped crowded airplane

By Kern Beare

I was flying home after facilitating my Difficult Conversations workshop at Idaho State University. It was the first leg of my return journey, a puddle-jump on a small turbo-prop from Pocatello to Seattle. It was a short flight, but long enough to teach me something.

During the boarding process, I had switched seats with a fellow traveler. I'd reserved an aisle seat, 14A, but the person who reserved 14B, the window seat, asked if we could switch places. I didn't want to, but I could see she'd find the aisle more comfortable, so I agreed.

Twenty minutes into the flight, I started to regret my act of kindness. I was feeling cramped, and frustrated that I couldn't stretch my legs. Regret soon morphed into resentment, and I began to stew. Why had she asked to switch? If I'd wanted the window seat, I'd have reserved the window seat! And she's not even that much bigger than me, she would have been fine sitting in the window seat!

I let this fruitless internal dialogue rage on for a minute or two, and then finally interrupted myself long enough to point out that I was undoing any personal benefit I might have received from being a nice person. Rather than the positive vibes that come with being considerate of others, I was encasing myself in the emotional equivalent of barbed wire – every resentful thought a painful poke at my insides.

So, taking a lesson from my workshop, I decided to refocus my attention and looked out the window to the vista below. At that point we were flying over the snow-capped Sawtooth mountain range, and I impulsively tapped my seatmate on the shoulder and pointed to the beautiful view outside. She removed the earphones she'd been using and gazed out the window.

Looking out the window together gave us a chance to chat a bit, which opened another window, one that gave me a small glimpse into her life. She'd been in Pocatello over the Mother's Day weekend to watch her grandchild so that her daughter, a single mother, could get some rest. Now she was headed back to Seattle where a full week of work awaited her. I could tell she was tired. A busy mother helping another busy mother over Mother's Day. It was a little sad – where were the men who should be celebrating them? – but also moving. By the end of this short conversation my resentment was gone. I felt good about my decision to switch seats, glad that after a tiring few days she at least had a more comfortable ride home.

This little episode reaffirmed for me the value of two related principles I talk about in my workshop: the importance of prioritizing the relationship over being right, and being able to see beyond our own story. Focusing just on my grievances — my 'story' — only amplified my discomfort and resentment. Focusing on the relationship forced me to widen my lens, to see beyond my story to take in the humanity of the other person – and to let that have a bearing, an influence, not only on how I saw the situation, but also on how I felt about it, and on how I responded.

A Hindu parable, recently sent to me by a friend, makes a similar point in perhaps a more memorable way:

An aging master grew tired of his apprentice complaining, and so, one morning, sent him for some salt. When the apprentice returned, the master instructed the unhappy young man to put a handful of salt in a glass of water and drink it.

"How does it taste?" the master asked.

"Bitter" said the apprentice, spitting it out.

The master then asked the young man to take the same handful of salt and put it in the lake. After the apprentice swirled his handful of salt in the water, the old man told him to drink from the lake.

"How does it taste?" the master asked.

"Fresh" said the apprentice.

"Do you taste the salt?" asked the master.

"No," said the young man.

At this, the master sat beside the young man, and said, "The pain of life is pure salt. But the amount of bitterness we taste depends on the container that holds it. So when you are in pain, the only thing you can do is to enlarge your sense of things. Stop being a glass. Become a lake."

In a difficult conversation, seeing beyond our story and strengthening the relationship is how we turn a glass into a lake. It reduces our bitter (salty) feelings toward the 'other' by 'enlarging our sense of things,' making us more compassionate, more responsive and, yes, even more happy.

The pain of life is pure salt. But the amount of bitterness we taste depends on the container that holds it.

The school has adopted a unified set of expectations for behavior, in place in every classroom and non-classroom setting in the school – Be Respectful, Be Responsible, and Be Ready.

Student behavior is documented using a tool called Class Dojo, a system that reinforces positive behaviors and quickly engages students in becoming accountable for their own choices. On a scheduled rotation, students are able to “shop” from the Dojo reward cart using the points they have earned for meeting the behavior expectations.

The Top Class Dojo winners for April include:

Local initiates include:

- Jaelyn Prater, of Oregon – Ohio Northern University.
- Kari Shupe, of Elmore – Bowling Green State University.
- Ella Dedes, of Oak Harbor – Bowling Green State University.

Students initiated into the society must be sophomores, juniors, seniors or graduate/professional students in the top 35% of their class, demonstrate leadership experience in at least one of the five pillars, and embrace the ODK ideals. Fewer than five percent of students on a campus are invited to join each year.

Max Venia, of Oregon, was recently initiated in the Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi at The University of Toledo.

Phi Kappa Phi is the nation's oldest and most selective collegiate honor society for all academic disciplines,

He is among approximately 25,000 students, faculty, professional staff and alumni to be initiated into Phi Kappa Phi each year. Membership is by invitation only and requires nomination and approval by a chapter. Only the top 10 percent of seniors and 7.5 percent of juniors are eligible for membership. Graduate students in the top 10 percent of the number of candidates for graduate degrees may also qualify, as do faculty, professional staff and alumni who have achieved scholarly distinction.

Novak inducted

Jake Novak, of Oregon, was inducted into the Baldwin Wallace University chapter of Chi Alpha Sigma (CAS) National College Athlete Honor Society in the spring 2022 semester. Novak, a graduate of Clay High School majoring in finance, shared the honor with 88 other students.

Society membership is extended to student-athletes selected by their athletic department in consultation with their head coach at a four-year accredited institution that is a member of the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) or the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA). The criteria for selection includes a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.4, junior academic standing by the fifth semester, earned athletic letter winner, and excellent character and citizenship.

Oberhouse performs

Conner Oberhouse, of Luckey, recently performed in the University of Findlay's spring instrumental recital. Oberhouse performed "Emmett's Lullaby" by G.E. Holmes on the tuba.

Eight Ottawa Co. students graduate from Skills Trades Academy

The Ottawa County Business Advisory Council (BAC) held its second graduation ceremony for the Ottawa County Skilled Trades Academy on May 12 at the Ottawa County Resource Center in Oak Harbor.

The eight graduates were joined by their parents and family, local high school administrators, representatives from OhioMeansJobs Ottawa County, Northwest State Community College administration and instructors, and members of the Ottawa County BAC.

Ken Williams, president of the Ottawa County BAC, offered a welcome and introduced Albert Lewis Jr., executive vice president of Northwest State Community College. Lewis congratulated the students and spoke on the importance of training and education in today's workforce.

Instructor Bill Hutchisson spoke about the program year and recognized the challenges the students faced due to COVID-19 lockdowns and absences.

The Skilled Trades Academy students participated in CPR training, off-site and on-site business visits with local employers, and forklift training. Some of the students also completed the two-week long Marine Trades Certificate Training, which provides entry-level skills and training needed to begin a Marine Service Technician career. The Marine Trades Certificate Training will be part of the Skilled Trades Academy curriculum this coming school year.

Lu Cooke, liaison to Lt. Governor Jon Husted, congratulated this year's class and read aloud a letter from Lt. Governor Jon Husted.

"To have this (Skilled Trades Academy) in your county is such an asset," Cooke said. "Congratulations on everything you've accomplished this school year."

The graduates were called by name to receive their certificates, which they completed throughout the program year, including the Marine Trades Certificate. They included:

- Camden Bloomer, Keegan Durdel and Ben Sage, Oak Harbor High School.
- Colin Brazelton and Dylan Green, Genoa High School.

The Ottawa County Business Advisory Council (BAC) held a ceremony for the eight students who graduated from the Ottawa County Skilled Trades Academy on May 12. (Submitted photo)

- Andrew Pautz and Lukas Schaub, Woodmore High School.
- Emmett Gillman, Port Clinton High School.

Students who also earned their Marine Trades Certificate were Robbie Jacobson, Samuel Sensmeier and Ripley St. Clair, Oak Harbor High School.

Prior to the graduation ceremony, local business representatives from LEWCO, Inc., and Northern Manufacturing met with the students to talk about career opportunities.

This BAC initiative is funded through a collaboration among an Ohio Department of Education Industry-Recognized Credentials grant, an Industry Sector Partnership grant from Gov. DeWine's Office of Workforce Transformation and the Ottawa County Improvement Corporation.

"None of this would be possible without the ongoing support from the Ottawa County Community Foundation and our local employers," Williams said.

The BAC aims to educate and expose Ottawa County students to the skills and continuing education needed to fill in-demand jobs in Ottawa County. For more information about the Ottawa County Skilled Trades Academy, visit www.ocic.biz/ocbac.

Sandusky CountyPositive People awards scholarships

Sandusky County Positive People held their 11th Annual High School Positive Living Award Breakfast May 11 at the Neely Center on the campus of Terra State Community College.

SCPP is a 501(c)3 non-profit organization that awards scholarships to area graduating high school students who have overcome a major obstacle in their lives and have come through those challenges with a positive attitude.

This year, SCPP recognized eight local students for the courage it took to face and overcome their challenges with integrity, self-reliance, determination and perseverance. Many of the students indicated that they were thankful they endured the challenges they did because it made them who they are today.

A total of $40,000 was awarded at this year's breakfast, bringing the grand total awarded by SCPP to $257,650 to 96 students.

The 2022 scholarship recipients included:

- First place – Leah Jividen (Gibsonburg Schools) received $7,500.
- Second place – Jaelie Humberger (Bellevue City School District) received $6,000.
- Third place – Brianna Benavidez (Lakota Local Schools) received $5,500.
- Fourth Place – Jacen Goble (Fremont City Schools/Vanguard Tech Center) received $5,000.

Finalists included Cadence Bloom (Lakota Local Schools/Vanguard Tech Center); Huntergrace Overmyer (Woodmore Local Schools); Gabriel Sawyer (Bellevue City School District) and Mckayla Firsdon (Lakota Local Schools) each received $4,000.

Two Spark Awards were given to students who "lit up the room" when they were interviewed by the SCPP Board. Those students were Leah Jividen and Jaelie Humberger.

Courage Awards were given to four students who demonstrated much bravery in coming forth to tell their stories. They include Leah Jividen, Jaelie Humberger, Brianna Benavidez and Cadence Bloom.

Positive Impact Awards were also presented to people who had a positive impact on the students' lives. Recipients include Mike and Kim Jividen, Julie Waggoner, Paul and Jamie Brubaker and Sarah Bloom (presented posthumously).

Again this year, Sandusky County Positive People invited several alumni/past scholarship recipients to give an update on where they are in their lives and how SCPP impacted them. Erica and Erin Hartley (class of 2019) and Zane Cox (class of 2014) all spoke to the attendees.

"I am always amazed by the courage these young adults have by allowing us to share their stories," said SCPP president Tom Hoffman. "Every year, they tell us two things: If it helps someone else, they are ok with sharing their stories and even though they have been through these situations, they wouldn't change a thing because these challenges made them who they are."

"These young adults are amazing," Hoffman said. "We are glad to give them an opportunity to celebrate what they have overcome and hopefully keep them on the right path."

Sandusky County Positive People thanked the many donors over the years as well as this year's scholarship donors including United Way of Sandusky County, Stan and Carol Manbeck, National Electrical Contractors Association and IBEW Local 8, Brian Koenig, Mike and Dolores Herbert/PT Services Rehabilitation, Tracy Lytle, Tim and Kim Ellenberger, Sandusky County Sesquicentennial, Carbo Forge/Kraak Foundation and the former Clyde/Grange #364 Scholarship.

SCPP's next event is the annual Summer Concert of the Year fundraiser Friday, July 15 at Terra State Community College. The concert, which will be held on the Terra outdoor Quad, will feature The Terra Fusion Band, Not Fast Enuff and headliner The Together Band. Tickets will be available for purchase in June online or at the Sandusky County Visitors Bureau, located at 712 North St. in Fremont.

For more information on SCPP, to make a donation or to purchase concert tickets online, visit scppohio.org. Updates and information are also available by visiting Sandusky County Positive People on Facebook.

Stone Lab Workshops

Workshops at Stone Lab, The Ohio State University's island campus on Lake Erie, offer a great way to add some professional development to the summer. This year's offerings last two to three days, and some workshops offer continuing education contact hours for educators and agency personnel.

For those looking to expand their professional know-how, Algae Identification (Aug. 8-9) helps prepare water treatment plant operators for harmful algal blooms that may affect their water intakes.

Fish-Sampling Techniques (Oct. 8-9) was developed with the help of the Ohio Department of Natural Resources (ODNR) and is taught with ODNR staff to give job seekers experience with techniques needed for agency employment. Learn more at you.tu.be/hxjBB23fCDk.

For teachers and other educators, Workshop in Environmental Education: Water and Wildlife (June 6-12) offers a field-based opportunity to receive certifications in "Project Wild," "Project Wild Aquatic," "Science & Civics," "Project Wet" and "Healthy Water, Healthy People." Scholarship funds to cover workshop fees are available for this class.

A complete listing of 2022 workshops is available online at go.osu.edu/SLworkshops.

Stone Lab's for-credit courses, available at go.osu.edu/SLcourses, can also be taken as non-credit workshops with approval of the instructor.

Lots of love, All of your Family!

In Loving Memory

Jay F. Hartman

2/18/62 - 5/31/21

~ Memorial Day, Then and Now ~

Memorial Day. In my lifetime, this holiday was to me known as "Hartman's Day". For 40 years of my world, it was where my whole family and many friends came together at Mom and Daddy's house for a lot of laughter, great food and of course, a few cocktails.

I look back on this day with warmth and much love. The great memories of watching our family grow, and every year at the Hartman's getting bigger. Wonderful memories were made on this day, for many years.

As this holiday rolls around, I find myself of course holding good times near, but now those times for me are wrapped in sadness. Somehow, today looking at time as a thief. Time. It has taken many of the "greats" of my family. It just so happens that thief showed up again. Just last year, on this day, even on Hartman's Day.

We lost my brother, Jay. I miss you man. So there is no celebration for me. This day has become a day I rarely spend in reality, as I drown myself in the loving memories of my family. Remembering how great my life was because of each one of them.

So, to all of you, I wish you a happy Memorial Day. Have fun, make great memories and love the people around you.

And to my angels in heaven, to all the great people I was lucky enough to call "mine", I will lift a beer to the sky today, reliving all the amazing years I shared with the people I will always love the most on Hartman's Day. Lastly, thank you to our Veterans, remembering with much respect our fallen heroes.

Love and good health to all, Nikki
